

ABSTRACT

WE REMEMBER SNOW AND OTHER STORIES

Life seldom goes according to script. We are often blindsided by an unpredicted course that appears out of nowhere, trouble unseen, a loss unimaginable. The characters in these stories must learn to navigate down roads and pathways that appear impassable. The stories of their difficult journeys are an attempt to portray the endless possibilities that exist in a new landscape.

Tanya Nichols
May 2004