

ABSTRACT

HYPERVIGILANCE

As a new mother, I chase the illusion of permanence, but I continue to find myself living in a world of transition—where everything collides at once—memory, dream, reality and imagination. As I result, I'm constantly rethinking truth and meaning from different perspectives.

Please join me in this collection as I explore different tensions, such as; between intellect and physicality, trying new perspectives, navigating through different dimensions in an attempt to find meaning, truth, and clarity through human experiences: love, loss, death, life, relationships, and birth.

Liz Scheid
May 2008