4. Update on Campus Construction Projects
 - a. There was no update on the Chestnut Avenue project.
 - b. There was a very wide-ranging discussion of various issues related to parking, with A. Gaad in attendance from the University Police Department. It was noted that the proposed parking garages are well in the future; funding for such projects is not currently available. It was also noted that there is interest in converting some faculty/staff lots (Yellow) to student use earlier in the evening than is currently designated (at present, all yellow lots are available to students after 7:00 PM). One suggestion might be to create a new parking category for lots that would change designated use earlier in the evening -- one lot in each quadrant of the campus could be so identified -- which might increase spaces available to students who are on campus in the evening.
 - c. R. Boyd noted that the library project is on schedule. The temporary location for library staff has not been finalized, although the area adjacent to the temporary building west of Peters might be available. R. Boyd and G. Wilson noted that some of the glass panels for the north wall of the new building have been rejected because of poor workmanship, which will delay completion of the glazing work.

- d. R. Boyd and G. Wilson briefed the committee on the proposed reconstruction the Peace Garden. Money has been set aside for the project and a preliminary meeting to discuss the revised garden took place last week. Work should begin early in the Fall Semester and be completed shortly after the library project is finished.
