

Giving Victims a Voice

In the criminal justice system, victims' rights can easily be overlooked. Dr. Bernadette Muscat, assistant professor of criminology, is a leader in the emerging field of victimology, which calls for increased counseling, education and legal advocacy for crime victims.

Victims too often experience severe stress and hardship when helping in the prosecution of offenders. Dr. Muscat has worked with state coalitions to develop and implement victim-related policies that bring more sensitivity to the process.

Fresno State is a birthplace of the victimology movement and the nation's first undergraduate degree and doctorate in victimology. At Fresno State, we're changing the world one idea at a time.

FRESNO STATE
POWERING THE NEW CALIFORNIA

More information at www.FresnoStateNews.com

On Campus

March 11-15 – 8 p.m.
"Single Black Female, Looking ..."
Dennis & Cheryl Woods Theatre
Speech Arts 135

