

Reading for Understanding

Learning to read is critical to success. So is making sure children have access to books with accurate depictions of our country's rich cultural heritage.

Dr. Laura Alamillo, assistant professor in Fresno State's Kremen School of Education and Human Development, trains future teachers to select literature that avoids stereotypes and mistaken cultural depictions. The more we truly understand others, the more we all benefit.

The development of language and literacy skills begins at birth. At Fresno State, we value the written word's power to inspire children and connect them to the world outside the classroom.
