

Interdisciplinary Applied Behavior Analysis—BCBA Certificate Program

There is a growing demand among professionals working in the human services arena to become Board Certified Behavior Analysts (BCBAs). This five-course, Board-approved sequence provides the academic requirements of the Behavior Analysis Certification Board for the BCBA. It is designed for professionals with baccalaureate or graduate degrees (or people working on graduate degrees) who work in school, hospital, home and community-care-home settings. It is also open to individuals desiring to supplement their knowledge of behavior analysis. All courses are taught in the evenings by BCBAs. In addition to course work, instructors will provide information on the certification process, experience requirements and international testing.

What is the IABA program all about? The program is designed for those who wish to become certified behavior analysts. If you already have, or are earning, a Master's degree, the five-course sequence will meet the academic requirements for testing for certification. Certification is provided through the Behavior Analysis Certification Board (BACB). Beginning January 2011, the applicant for certification must have the appropriate degree "from an accredited university, that was conferred in behavior analysis or other natural science, education, human services, engineering, medicine or a field related to behavior analysis and approved by the BACB" (bacb.com). These courses, your Master's degree, and supervision hours must be complete before you can test for the BCBA. If you are interested in doing behavior analytic work with a Bachelor's degree, this program prepares you academically for the BCaBA with the introductory, first, second and fourth classes only. BCBAs and BCaBAs work in many settings: homes, schools, institutions, businesses, health-care facilities and zoos. They apply the scientifically-derived principles of behavior to socially significant behavior. The people served include the general population, adults and children with disabilities, typically developing children in schools, adults and children who need to learn and stay on health maintenance programs, employees and employers to maintain high quality work in safe and enriching environments. Some BCBAs and BCaBAs work with non-humans in animal care facilities, zoos, or in home settings.

Do I have to take the courses in sequence? Yes, with a few exceptions. If you took the Fresno State graduate ABA or Functional Analysis courses as part of the Ed.S. degree in the previous three years, you may skip those classes (this does not apply to other Ed. S. programs.) BCaBA candidates do not have to take Research Methods.

Does the program provide supervision? No. The program is approved by the Behavior Analysis Certification Board for the academic requirements for the BCBA and the BCaBA. We hope most people have supervision through their jobs. If not, we will attempt to find people to supervise them, but cannot guarantee it. Fresno, Clovis, Madera, and Sanger Unified and Tulare and Fresno County Offices of Education now have BCBAs on staff. Each year more districts hire BCBAs. CVRC has several BCBAs and most private, local providers of ABA services have a BCBA on site to supervise.

How much supervision will I need? 1500 hours for the BCBA students, 1000 for the BCaBA students. You have to work 10-30 hours per week and 10% of that time must be supervised. Half the hours can be in groups of up to five, half must be one-on-one. Half must be direct observation of the supervisee working. Hours that are not ABA work do not count. So a school psychologist who is doing testing or a program director who is doing bookwork cannot count those hours.

I am an International Student. Can I enroll in this program? International students need to take a minimum of 12 units a semester to qualify for an I-20 so that they can get an F-1 student visa. The Board Certified Behavior Analyst program is 1 unit in summer, 8 units in the fall and 7 units in the spring so international students would not qualify for the minimum units if they participate in this program without taking other classes. For more questions on studying as an international student go to the International Student Services website www.fresnostate.edu/issp/

What about registration and payment? There are several ways to register and several ways to pay. Remember, you must do both to be fully enrolled in a course. Registration and payment deadlines are one week prior to the first day of the class to ensure you are both on the roll and on Blackboard the first day of class. Registration after the first day of class incurs a late fee. For full details, go to the last section of this document.

The 2013/2014 program will be different from the above coursework and schedule. There will be three differences:

1. The first class will be two units, not one.
2. The Ethics (last) class will be four units, not three.
3. Because of this, the cost will go up by $650 overall.

These changes are due to the Behavior Analysis Certification Board increasing requirements for basic principles and for ethics.

The 2013-2014 schedule will be available in late February.

REGISTRATION AND PAYMENT: Below are several ways to register and pay for the classes. The Division of Continuing and Global Education is at the east end of the Kremen Ed building, Room 130, on the northwest corner of Shaw and Maple.
