

Compassionate Creed

The teacher will promote a diverse literacy component that embraces students' backgrounds and cultures as well as their ideas and interests. Whether it's fiction or non-fiction, literacy should be an escape into independence and knowledge. Literacy should encourage exploration, confidence, and self-worth in the students. The teacher will demonstrate a profound appreciation and understanding of literacy and therefore, provide a comfortable atmosphere for the students to learn the necessary skills for success. Students will be curious and explore different genres as a way to enhance their knowledge and skills. Students will appreciate and thoroughly enjoy literature.

Instructor Feedback: I appreciate your creed and how you place literacy at the center of your work as a teacher. Please revise:

The teacher will promote a diverse literacy component Instead: The teacher will promote (or honor) diversity in her approach to literacy that embraces. . . .
