

Message from the Dean

Welcome to the Kremen School of Education and Human Development at California State University, Fresno. Last year, Fresno State won the President's Award as one of the six most engaged universities in our nation alongside the likes of Duke, Michigan State, and the University of Missouri. The Kremen School is the most engaged of all our campus's programs making us national leaders.

We are the only university in our region to be accredited nationally in both teacher education and counseling. Last year, we awarded a thousand credentials, three hundred and sixty master's degrees, and nine doctorates in Educational Administration. We just welcomed our third cohort into the independent Doctorate in Educational Leadership and our Rehabilitation Counseling master's degree is the third ranked program in its field in the nation.

Kremen School faculty and students are committed to making a difference in our valley. The Central Valley Educational Leadership Institute is helping to close the achievement gap. Our partner school initiative is raising scores in schools across the valley. Mediator Mentors teaches conflict resolution in sixty-six elementary schools. Four hundred and fifty of our students work as either paraprofessionals or in after school programs. Our math and science credential programs are gaining national prominence.

The Kremen School is producing leaders and creating change. I hope you will join us to create a career, to improve your practice, or to make a difference in California.
