On the FAFSA you answered that a parent was a dislocated worker. In general, a person may be considered a dislocated worker for the reasons below. Please provide the requested documentation for the situation that applies.

NOTE: Breaks in seasonal employment do not qualify for dislocated worker classification.

Laid off or received a lay-off notice from a job

- Copy of the lay-off notice from employer, on employer letterhead.

Receiving Unemployment due to:

NOTE: If a person quits work, generally they are not considered a dislocated worker even if, for example, the person is receiving unemployment benefits.

Lay-Off

- Copy of unemployment letter indicating benefits are due to lay-off OR
- Copy of the lay-off notice from your employer, on employer letterhead.

Loss of a job and are unlikely to return to previous occupation

- Copy of the unemployment letter, AND
- Signed personal statement explaining why the parent cannot return to previous occupation.

Self-employed, but now unemployed due to economic conditions or natural disaster

- Signed personal statement explaining why the parent is now unemployed, and
- Copy of your tax return showing that the parent was self-employed

Displaced homemaker

- Signed personal statement explaining why the parent is now displaced homemaker
- Documentation of parent's unemployment or underemployment (letter from unemployment or employer indicating hours working)

If you were a seasonal worker or marked the question in error, please check below:

- I mistakenly answered yes to the Dislocated Worker question.
